Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

This bill is explained in the NOTES provided by the Joint Legislative Council in the bill.

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

JOINT LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL PREFATORY NOTE: This bill was prepared for the Joint Legislative Council's special committee on emergency management and continuity of government. It includes provisions on: (1) emergency interim successors for legislators; (2) virtual meetings of the legislature; and (3) emergency temporary locations for the legislature.

Emergency Interim Successors

Current law provides a mechanism for appointment of emergency interim successors for the governor and a variety of state and local officers. However, current law does not provide a mechanism for appointment of emergency interim successors for legislators.

SENATE BILL 227

The bill provides that a legislator, as soon as practicable after the legislature convenes every 2 years, must file with the chief clerk for the legislator's house a list of not less than 3 nor more than 7 emergency interim successors. The list is not subject to inspection or copying under the open records law. If, during an emergency resulting from enemy action, there are more than 9 vacancies in the Senate, or more than 25 vacancies in the Assembly, interim successors named in the list are to be appointed by the presiding officer or his or her designee in the house in which the threshold has been met to fill the vacancies. An interim emergency successor is required to exercise the powers and discharge the duties of the office until the vacancy is filled through an election or the emergency has ended. All votes taken by emergency interim successors are as valid as if taken by a legislator.

Under Article IV, Section 34, of the Wisconsin Constitution, the legislature is required to provide for continuity of governmental operations in periods of emergency resulting from enemy action in the form of an attack. The special committee has recommended a constitutional amendment that requires the legislature to ensure continuity in other types of emergencies. The bill provides that if such a constitutional amendment is ratified, the presiding officer shall appoint interim successor whenever the requisite number of vacancies exists.

Virtual Meetings

The bill would permit each house of the legislature, pursuant to its rules or joint rules, to issue a notice that the house and its committees are prevented from physically meeting at the seat of government due to a disaster. If a notice is issued, the house and any committee of the house may conduct a virtual meeting and transact business using any means of communication by which all of the following occur: (1) the identity of each participating member is verified and the actions of each participating member are authenticated; (2) all participating members are able to simultaneously hear or read the comments of members recognized to speak; (3) any document that is used by a member and that is accepted by the presiding officer or chairperson is immediately transmitted to the other participating members; and (4) the public has the opportunity to monitor the proceedings, within technological limits. In order for a joint committee of the legislature to hold a virtual meeting in the manner described above, each house would have to issue a notice of emergency. Exceptions to public notice of legislative proceedings or meetings and to public access are provided where the public welfare requires secrecy, as provided in Article IV, Section 10, of the Wisconsin Constitution.

Under the bill, a virtual meeting held in accordance with these requirements would be considered to have occurred at the seat of government and all actions taken at a virtual meeting would have the same legal effect as if the members were physically present at the seat of government. For purposes of determining the presence of a quorum to conduct business, any member participating in a virtual meeting would be considered present in the same manner as if physically present at the seat of government.

The bill provides that in presiding over a virtual meeting of a house of the legislature, the presiding officer must interpret and apply all rules of proceeding of that house which presume the physical presence of members in the house's chambers at the seat of government, in a manner so as to accomplish the same purposes for which the rules were adopted. Finally, the bill states that the language authorizing virtual meetings does not limit the authority of either house to use teleconferencing for purposes of holding a committee meeting at the seat of government.

Emergency Temporary Locations

Under current law, whenever during a state of emergency it becomes imprudent, inexpedient, or impossible to conduct the affairs of state government at the state capital, the governor is required to designate an emergency temporary location for the seat of government and to take such action and issue such orders as are necessary for an orderly transition of the affairs of state government to that location. While the seat of government remains at a temporary location, all official acts required by law to be performed at the seat of government are as valid and binding when performed at the temporary location as if performed at the normal location.

This bill allows the legislature, by joint rule, to provide a process for designating an emergency temporary seat of government for the legislature that is different than the location designated by the governor. Under the bill, whenever, as the result of a disaster or the imminent threat of a disaster, it becomes imprudent, inexpedient, or impossible to conduct the business of the legislature at the state capital, the legislature may meet either at the location designated by the governor or the location designated by the legislature itself. Information about this location is not subject to inspection or copying under the open records law.
